HOMECOMING 2012

April 29, 2012 has been designated as HOMECOMING for the congregation at Ooltewah. This will serve as an excellent opportunity to ask members of your family who have "grown and gone", but attended here while at home. Also there are several who have moved away, but are still within driving distance and we can let them know we would like to see them again. I am aware of several who live in the Ooltewah area, that attend elsewhere. Often folks leave a congregation during trying times and feelings are damaged, so this provides an opportunity to be as the father of the prodigal son, "ready and willing to receive and kill the fatted calf". We know the passage to heaven is strait and narrow, therefore there is no room for grudges hanging on our shoulder. This could very well be the first step toward reconciliation in those situations. HOMECOMING 2012 is destined to succeed and provide us with a giant stepping stone to the future. We look back only to profit from the events that have taken place in yesteryear. It is a springboard to the future. Remember the words of the inspired Apostle Paul, "...forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus". Begin today to invite others... We will have some cards by next week for you to send, so spend this week making a list of those you wish to invite.
